

DAM TOUR

No. of Scouts: 3

Scout One (answering 'phone): Good morning. Dam tours. Yes we can tell you anything you would like to know about our dam tours. We can answer any dam questions. You want to make a dam visit today? Just meet me at the bottom of the dam stairs by the dam door. (Walks offstage.)

Scout Two (coming onstage): That's a lot of dam stairs for this dam tour.

Scout Three: It had better dam well be worth it.

Scout Two: I wonder how long this dam tour will last; I want to make sure that there's plenty of time available for a visit to the dam gift shop.

Scout One: Hi. You must be the dam scout tour group. I hope you enjoy your dam day. Please wear these dam passes. Now follow me and don't press any dam knobs or pull any dam levers.

Scout Two: Oh no! My dam pass has fallen off.

Scout Three: Don't worry. I don't expect anyone will look at the dam thing.

Scout One: If you climb up here you will get a dam fine view and you will be able to see some of the dam workers hard at it making sure that the dam is as full of dam water as it can possibly be. Now let's take the dam lift to the bottom so you can see things from another dam perspective. I'm not going to do any more dam walking today; I'm dam knackered.

Scout Three: I haven't seen the dam gift shop anywhere yet.

Scout One: Now we're at the bottom of a dam dam that's holding back millions of gallons of dam water. It's a dam fine construction achievement.

Scout Three: Do you have any dam safety?

Scout One: Oh yes. We dam well do. More than enough. Dam lights and dam alarms also. The dam is used for all sorts of activities. The dam fishermen are around most weekends and we have dam sailors in their dam sailing boats. Anyway. Enough of this. Would you like to go to the dam gift shop where you can buy all sorts of dam tat? See you later! (Everyone walks offstage.)

Scout Two: That was the best dam tour I've ever been on!
